PROTECTION OF PATENTS.

The following Letters and Certificates have been received from the Board of Trade:—

BOARD OF TRADE,
12th January, 1886.

Sir,

Referring to your recent letter, asking, on behalf of the Royal Commission for the Colonial and Indian Exhibition, for information as to the protection that will be granted by this Department to Colonial Inventions to be exhibited, I am directed by the Board of Trade to state that the only protection that can be afforded to such Inventions is that prescribed by Section 39 (copy herewith) of the Patents, &c., Act, 1883.

It may, however, be suggested that the attention of the Colonial Commissioners should be drawn to the question whether Colonists exhibiting inventions unpatented in the Colonies might possibly deprive themselves of the right to obtain patents in their respective Colonies.

I am, Sir,

Your obedient Servant,

(Signed) HENRY G. CALCRAFT.

The Secretary, Royal Commission for the Colonial and Indian Exhibition, South Kensington, S.W.

BOARD OF TRADE,

I am at the same time to enclose copy of sections 39 and 57 of the Patents, &c., Act, and to draw attention to the steps that will have to be taken by intending exhibitors who wish to avail themselves of the protection afforded by these sections of the Act.

I am, Sir,

Your obedient Servant,

HENRY G. CALCRAFT.

CANADIAN NATURALIZATION, PASSPORTS, AND OATHS OF ALLEGIANCE.

CIRCULAR.

DOWNING STREET, 18th May, 1882.

SIR,

Her Majesty's Government have had under their consideration the position of Aliens naturalized in a Colony, when travelling beyond the limits of the Colony in which naturalization has been granted, and they have decided that Aliens naturalized in British Colonies shall, as regards their claim to British protection out of Her Majesty's Dominions, be placed, in future, on the same footing as Aliens naturalized in this country under the Naturalization Act of 1870.

2. To carry out this object, Aliens naturalized in British Colonies will be allowed to receive from the Governor of the Colony in which they have been naturalized a passport unlimited in point of duration, instead of a passport for one year, as is now authorized. These passports will also be issued by the Foreign Office in London, on the recommendation of the Secretary of State for the Colonies.

3. If, however, an Alien naturalized in the Colony, and not possessing such passport, finds himself in need of one when in a foreign country, a British Minister or Consul will be empowered, on such evidence as he may deem sufficient, to grant him a Provisional Passport, limited in duration, in order to meet the immediate requirements of his case, and to enable him to return to his Colony or to the United Kingdom, and so establish his identity beyond question, and obtain a Permanent Passport.

4. I enclose an amended Regulation, which will be substituted in the Colonial Regulations for the present Regulation No. 404, in Chapter XIV.; and also an amended Form of Passport, which will be inserted in the Appendix, in place of the Form and Memorandum now in use.

I have the honour to be, Sir,

Your most obedient, humble Servant,

KIMBERLEY.

The Officer Administering the Government of Canada.

Form of Passport.

This Passport is granted to A. B., naturalized as a British subject in this Colony, to enable him to travel in foreign parts.

This Passport is granted with the qualification that the bearer shall not, when within the limits of the Foreign State of which he was a subject, previously to obtaining his Colonial Certificate of Naturalization, be entitled to British protection, unless he has ceased to be a subject of that State in pursuance of the laws thereof, or in pursuance of a Treaty to that effect.

INTRODUCTION.

THE DOMINION OF CANADA

Occupies the northern half of the North American continent. It covers an area of 3,500,000 square miles, and is territorially about equal in extent to the continent of Europe. Reaching from the Atlantic to the Pacific Ocean, the western half has a Southern frontier which, if extended across the Atlantic Ocean, would strike the latitude of Paris, while the southernmost point of the eastern section of the country is in the latitude of Rome. Canada is thus the physical equivalent on the continent of North America of the great empires and kingdoms of Germany, France, Italy, Russia in Europe, Sweden and Norway, Belgium, and the British Islands; it is, above all, an integral portion of the British Empire, containing natural resources as varied and as great as of those countries.

Nineteen short years ago Her Majesty's possessions in North America entered upon a corporate existence, and the change that has since taken place in the general development and the prosperity of Canada cannot but be accepted as a remarkable proof of the sagacity of the imperial and colonial statesmen who directed the movement. The confederation of the provinces grew out of the natural desire of the people of the disconnected provinces to unite for their mutual benefit. To the demand for the privilege of confederating, the British Parliament responded, in 1867, by passing the "British North American Act," providing for the voluntary union of the various provinces in North America under the name of the "Dominion of Canada," and for the cession to the Dominion of all the vast unsettled area of British America formerly dominated by the Hudson's Bay Company, with power to create new provinces and admit them into the union when sufficiently populated. The Act came into operation on the 1st of July, 1867—the provinces of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick uniting with Upper and Lower Canada, henceforth Ontario and Quebec. This union of the inland and maritime provinces gave to Canada an importance she had never before possessed. In 1870, the Province of Manitoba was created, having been carved out of that portion of the territory lying on both sides of the Red River of the North, embracing the city of Winnipeg and the old Red River settlements of the Hudson's Bay Company. In 1871, the large and prosperous Province of British Columbia was added, comprising all that region lying between the Rocky Mountains and the Pacific, including the numerous large islands fringing the coast, and extending from the United States to and beyond the southern limit of Alaska; and in 1873 Prince Edward Island joined the confederation.

This political bond has been strengthened by the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway, the great national undertaking which has now been brought to a successful termination, and by means of which the extreme eastern and western ends of the Dominion are brought into close relationship with each other and with the hitherto scarcely known interior. The completion of the new line must largely stimulate travel, immigration, settlement, and commerce, and draw the attention of the people of every nation to the enormous area of the Dominion, its large population, and the great variety and magnitude of its natural resources.

The population of the Dominion approximates 5,000,000, which is augmenting at a rapid rate, and which, notwithstanding the diversity of origin, has, under the force of circumstances, been welded into a homogeneous whole. About one-half are of English, Scotch, and Irish extraction; one-fourth are of direct French descent; Germany is well represented; and every nation in Europe has contributed its quota to swell the population. Of Indians there is an estimated population of 100,000. About one-third of these live in the older provinces, and have been long since gathered into settlements under the care of officers of the Indian Department, in some cases having industrial schools and other organisations to aid them in their progress toward a higher civilisation; and it is only necessary to glance at the products of Indian industry in the Exhibition in order to learn how marked that progress has been.

The Government of Canada, as at present constituted, is a representative one, the executive authority being vested in the Sovereign of Great Britain and carried on in the name of the Crown by a Governor-General, assisted by a Privy Council. These form the chief Government for the whole Dominion. The legislative branch consists of a Dominion Parliament, composed of two houses. The Upper House, or Senate, consists of members who are appointed for life by the Governor-General in Council. The House of Commons is a purely representative body, elected by the people, the representation being apportioned to the various provinces in the ratio of their population. Each province enjoys local self-government, having a provincial legislature elected by the people, and a Lieutenant-Governor appointed by the Chief or Federal Government. There is also a very perfect system of municipal government throughout the Dominion. Both the counties and townships have local governments or councils, which regulate their local taxation for roads, taxes for schools and other purposes, so that every man directly votes for the taxes which he pays. This system of responsibility, from the municipalities up to the General Government, causes everywhere a feeling of contentment and satisfaction, the people believing that no other form of government can give them greater freedom.

The utmost religious liberty everywhere prevails in Canada. Persons coming to the Dominion from Europe, of different persuasions, will find places of worship and abundant facilities for the practice of their faith among neighbours who will sympathise with their views.

Before School Boards were established in England the Dominion had a well-organised system of public or common schools in operation, in which instruction is not merely confined to the rudiments of education. In many cases the higher branches are taught, and the children receive a sound practical education, fitting them for any ordinary position in life. Both in the country districts and in the towns, boards of trustees, elected by the people, manage the affairs of the public schools. Provision is also made for the establishment of separate schools in districts where the inhabitants are divided in their religious opinions, and mixed schools are not possible. The public schools are absolutely free, and are supported partly by a local tax and partly by a grant from the Provincial Treasury.

In addition, there are grammar schools in all parts of the country, managed like the public schools, at which, as well as at the many excellent private schools, pupils receive a good classical and modern education. Above these again are the high schools, collegiate institutes, and universities, the latter liberally endowed with scholarships, where the cost of attendance is comparatively so small as to place the facilities for education they offer within the reach of all. There are also schools of surgery and medicine in the larger cities, and the religious denominations also have colleges at which young men are prepared for the ministry. The higher education of girls is also met in the fullest manner by numerous high schools, generally denominational in character. In fact, means of education, from the highest to the lowest, everywhere abound in the Dominion.

The variations of the Canadian climate are less than in many countries of much smaller extent. But throughout nearly its whole area Canada is characterised by a greater heat in summer and a lower temperature in winter than in corresponding European latitudes. The climate of the eastern and especially of the western provinces is moderated by the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans respectively, while the great water system of rivers and lakes, which extends throughout the Dominion, helps to preserve an equable climate in the interior provinces. The degrees of latitude, therefore, are a very imperfect guide to the character of the Canadian climate as compared with that of the British Isles, and any statement of the mean temperature of the two is deceptive. The severity of the winter, as tested by the thermometer, leads to a very exaggerated impression of Canadian experiences. Owing to the dry, clear, bracing atmosphere which generally prevails, raw easterly winds and damp fogs are rarely experienced in a Canadian winter. There are, indeed, every winter some days of intense cold, as in the summer there are brief periods of equally intense heat, when the thermometer ascends or descends very much. But throughout the greater part of the winter season, in Canada, the sky is bright and clear, and the weather thoroughly enjoyable. Everywhere the appearance of the snow is hailed as seasonable and beneficial. It protects the wheat sown in autumn from the frost, affords facilities to the farmer for bringing his produce to market, aids the lumberman in collecting the fruits of his labour in the forest at suitable points for transport, and so contributes alike to business and pleasure. In short, the Canadian climate is marked by the striking contrast of two seasons—summer and winter—bringing with them alternations of fruitful labour and of repose intermingled with profitable industry and pleasure. This characteristic prevails, with slight variations, throughout the greater part of the Dominion.

While it is impossible, within the limits of this introduction, to speak in detail of the agricultural capabilities of Canada, it may be stated generally that its soil and climate are such that the country produces a greater variety of grains, grasses, vegetables, and fruits than is usually grown in Great Britain and Ireland. It possesses the largest extent of cultivable land yet opened for settlement, adapted to the growth of productions of the temperate climates, not only on the American Continent, but in the world. Canada is pre-eminently a country of yeoman farmers. The land is held in possession and tilled by the settler on his own account; and, with every addition to the numbers of its industrious population, fresh acres are recovered from the wilderness and added to the productive resources and the wealth of the Dominion. By patient industry and frugality it is in the power of every Canadian to become owner of a house and proprietor of whatever amount of land he can turn to profitable account. The majority of the farms are small, tilled by the proprietor with his own hands, with the help of his sons and occasional hired labour in the busy season of harvesting. But capital is also successfully applied to farming, and large stock farms in the eastern provinces, and latterly in the ranching country at the foot of the Rocky Mountains, are now carried on with great success.

The forests of Canada abound in fine timber, adapted to almost every variety of useful or ornamental work, and furnishing one main element of wealth. Their value is becoming more apparent every year. At present the produce of the forests exceeds in value any other yield of the growth, produce, or manufacture of the Dominion. The total value of the annual exports of timber products approximates £6,000,000, for which Great Britain and the United States are the principal markets.

The mineral resources are represented by coal fields of immense extent, both on its Atlantic and Pacific coasts; and there are large deposits beneath the surface of its prairie lands east of the Rocky Mountains. It has iron, gold, silver, copper, lead, and other mines of great richness; and almost every description of the most valuable building materials; also petroleum, salt, and phosphates.

Looking to the native fauna of Canada from an economic point of view, it is abundantly evident that the animal life of its seas and rivers is one of its great and inexhaustible sources of wealth. Alike on the sea coasts, in the estuaries, and throughout its great inland lakes and rivers, the most valuable fish abound. Canada has been esteemed from its earliest discovery for its valuable fur-bearing animals, and has been the trapping and hunting ground for two centuries for the Hudson's Bay Company and other organisations. For sportsmen the country offers unusual attractions, both in the abundance and variety of its game—which is well distributed over the backwoods of the eastern provinces, the districts immediately west of Lake Superior, the prairie region, and in British Columbia. The northern sections of Canada are the breeding grounds of an immense variety of the feathered tribe.

Thus, with an advantageous geographical position, with resources not widely dissimilar to those of England, and institutions calculated to secure law and order, civil and religious liberty, and the best traditions of the mother country, Canada may, in the not distant future, become the home of one of the most populous and powerful peoples of the earth.

The display made by Canada at the present Colonial and Indian Exhibition of 1886 shows the extraordinary progress achieved by the Dominion of late years.

In the Exhibition of 1851, British North America* occupied about 3,886 square feet of space.

At the Paris Universal Exhibition of 1855, the British North American Provinces occupied 3,153 square feet of space.

British North America was represented in the Exhibition of 1862 by 328 exhibitors, the space occupied by them being not quite 5,000 square feet.

In the Paris Universal Exhibition of 1867, Canada was represented by 610 exhibitors.

On the occasion of the Philadelphia Centennial Exhibition of 1876, Canada received nearly 50,000 square feet of space, and her exhibitors numbered 1,056.

At the Paris Universal Exhibition of 1878, the Dominion had 534 exhibitors.

Canada was represented at the Antwerp Exhibition of 1885 by about 172 exhibitors, and had about 10,000 square feet of space.

At the present Exhibition the Dominion has more than 1,700 exhibitors, and occupies nearly 100,000 square feet of space.

* By "British North America" is meant Quebec, Ontario, British Columbia, New Brunswick, Newfoundland, Nova Scotia, Prince Edward Island, and Vancouver's Island.

The space at first allotted to Canada being inadequate for the display of the numerous exhibits received from the Dominion, it was not possible, in all cases, to arrange the exhibits according to their respective classes, room being made for them in the additional spaces allotted at various times by the Royal Commission.

Almost every branch of industry is represented, and in some cases to a great extent.

A Collection of the Woods of the Province: Designed and arranged as a trophy by Messrs. J. & J. D. Howe, of St. John, New Brunswick.

The main portion of the trophy embraces all the larger or commercial woods which are sufficiently abundant to form an important item for trade. These are divided into three sections. The right wing comprises the evergreen or coniferous specimens, including hemlock, red and white pine, black and white spruce, hackmatack, cedar, and fir. The central section is made up of the dense woods, such as the black and white birch, rock and scarlet maples, and beech. The left wing consists of black and white ash, red and grey oak, elm, butternut, bass-wood, and poplar. At the base of each of these fifteen large panels there is a log of the same wood, 20 inches in diameter and 3 feet 1 inch in height, while the sides of the panels are formed of saplings or young trees of the same woods, resting upon turned bases and surmounted by carved capitals representing the foliage and fruit or flower of these trees. These, again, are surmounted by a scroll saw and carved bracket, all of the same wood as the corresponding panel.

Between the large panels and the logs an inclined case or frame, made of ash, has been placed, and contains 30 small panels, showing the smaller woods, and also several of the larger kinds which are not sufficiently abundant for commercial purposes or of sufficient importance for the large panels. All of those embraced in these panels are, however, useful in the arts, for chemical and medicinal purposes, and for ornamental trees. Many of them are comparatively unknown, and their beauty and utility unappreciated. Some, valuable for economic purposes, are used for tool handles, bobbin stocks, and novelty work, and are susceptible of a very high degree of polish. These panels consist of sumach, aspen, poplar, ground or pasture ash, choke cherry, wild red cherry, wild black cherry, witch hazel, red hornbeam and hop hornbeam, thorn-plum, winter beech, small or white moosewood and black moosewood or striped maple, white or silver maple, mountain maple or white wood, black alder, swamp alder, yellow birch burl, grey birch and water birch, billberry, may cherry, rowan tree or mountain ash, swamp rowan tree, dogwood, slippery elm, white willow, balm of Gilead or balsam poplar, wild crab apple, and princess pine. Each of the panels is framed with strips showing the bark, and the corners are transverse sections showing the end grain. The aim of the whole design is to show the woods in all forms which will interest practical wood-workers: therefore the combination in the large panels shows the slash and rift of the grain, as well as an end section showing the density of the grain, annual growth, depth of sap, bark, &c. These last-named sections or quarters, shown at the base of the panels, also convey a better idea of the size of the growth of these woods, being taken from more fully developed trees.

The cornice which surmounts these panels is composed principally of bark and specimens of each wood in mouldings. Above the central section is placed a poplar board with ebonized letters bearing the words "Woods of New Brunswick, Canada." (In the Central Gallery.)

MEMBRES DE LA COMMISSION

L'honorable Gédéon Ouimet, Commissaire Honoraire à l'Exposition, Officier de l'Instruction Publique de France, Surintendant de l'Instruction Publique de la Province de Québec. M. l'Abbé L. N. Bégin, Principal de l'Ecole Normale Laval. Révérend Elson I. Rexford, Secrétaire du Département de l'Instruction Publique. Paul de Cazes, secrétaire du Département de l'Instruction Publique.

The Educational Exhibit which we have prepared does not adequately represent the state of education in the Province of Quebec. The short time which our Superior Educational Institutions and our Elementary Schools had to prepare for the great educational display, to which the British Colonies have been invited, has prevented many institutions from taking part. Several of our scholastic institutions, which could have prepared excellent exhibits, finding themselves unprepared, and fearing that they might compromise their well-deserved reputation by a hurriedly prepared exhibit, have abstained from taking any part in the present display. Such as it is,

Notre Exposition Scolaire est loin, nous devons l'avouer, de donner une idée exacte du degré d'avancement de l'instruction publique dans la Province de Québec.

Le temps trop limité que nos maisons d'éducation supérieure et nos écoles primaires ont pour se préparer au grand concours scolaire auquel toutes les Colonies de la Grande Bretagne ont été conviées, a été cause de bien des abstentions regrettables. Car, plusieurs de nos institutions de l'un et de l'autre sexe, parmi celles qui pouvaient figurer le plus avantageusement dans cette joute intellectuelle, ne se trouvant pas suffisamment préparées et craignant peut-être de risquer une répuour exhibit represents the regular work carried on in our Elementary Schools and in our Institutions of Superior Education; and we venture to hope that, under the circumstances, these illustrations of the results of our educational system may meet with the approval of the specialists appointed to examine them.
